Building on Principles

Gravenhurst Centennial Centre: Commitment and Trust Prevails

On July 10, 2012, The Dalton Company Ltd. was on hand to help celebrate the grand opening of the Centennial Centre and Aquatic Facility in Gravenhurst - an important milestone representing more than two years of hard work.

Dalton was honoured to be chosen in 2010 as the construction management company for the Centennial Centre expansion, because of the opportunity it provided to apply the company's Building on Principles concept to an important community initiative.

Representatives of The Dalton Company joined the Honourable Tony Clement (MP, Parry Sound-Muskoka), Gravenhurst Mayor Paisley Donaldson, former interim-Chief Administrative Officer Dave Weldon, and other dignitaries in marking the occasion.

The scope of work was significant: it involved renovating and creating a 70,000 SF addition that includes a state of the art recreational centre for aquatics, banquet hall space, and a gym and fitness centre - all to provide much needed new program space.

Honourable Tony Clement

Dalton's Alternative Approach to Building

Using our Alternative Approach to Building, Dalton established a collaborative environment designed to allow decisions to be made with the input of all key stakeholders, acting as equal partners. The process assisted everyone in dealing efficiently and effectively with overcoming a number of difficult obstacles throughout the construction process, which could have had a negative impact on a project. We worked in close partnership with CS&P Architects, their consultants, and our trade contractors. Our site and project management team facilitated every step through completion.
