The restoration of St. James' Parish House was officially launched on March 8, 2010 during a groundbreaking ceremony.

To be renamed the Cathedral Centre, the Parish House is a part of St. James' Cathedral, which has played a vital role in the community and Toronto's architectural landscape for more than 200 years.

Celebrating 70 years in 2010, construction manager The Dalton Company Ltd. sees the significance of the Cathedral's history.

Over 10 years of planning has gone into the restoration and expansion of the Parish House, built in 1909 and last refurbished over 50 years ago. For this reason, the groundbreaking symbolizes the beginning of the realization of all these years' plans to enrich the vibrant King & Church neighbourhood.

Designed by architectsAlliance, the Cathedral Centre will span 44,000 square feet, providing office space, meeting rooms, archives, housing, barrier free access and landscaped surroundings.

While the historic façade along Church and Adelaide will be maintained, new glass walls will increase visibility in the area facing St. James' Park. Scheduled for completion in 2011, the Centre will be designed as an inspiring, beautiful landmark for the neighbourhood.
